

THE NEED

The Need for a Parenting Workshop arises when even after giving our children lots of love, care, attention and facilities, still we

■ often say to our children...

- ▶ "Why don't you ever listen to me?"
- ▶ "No excuses and arguments, do as I say!"

■ complain...

- ▶ "My child is a brat; how to discipline him?"
- ▶ "I always have to be behind her, to get things done."

■ face problems on daily basis in managing and bringing up our children.

■ are stressed about our children being difficult, disobedient, uncooperative or irresponsible.

■ have tension and unhappiness in our relationship with our children.

We need an effective Parenting Workshop like VES's 'How to Make Your Children Listen to You?' because.....

- Parenting is important and challenging.
- Love, parental instincts and usual child rearing methods may not always help.
- Such a parenting workshop provides training to equip and empower us with easy-to-apply skills to
 - ▶ improve relationships
 - ▶ raise well-behaved children
 - ▶ make parenting a joyful experience.

"The content of the workshop and the way the facilitator conducted it was excellent. The skills learnt are very easy to apply in day-to-day life. Thank you VES for providing such a life-changing experience."

- have already trained thousands outstanding teaching professionals.
- touch the lives of hundreds of parents and their children, bringing them happiness and satisfaction.

"Skills are really handy. I am using them and finding a big difference in the way my relationship with my child is improving. Feels really good. Thanks."

Akshit Mehta, Lecturer

WORKSHOP

The workshop has six sessions on relevant aspects concerned with effective parenting, teaching and care giving. Participants are trained in easy, tried and tested, flexible and highly implementable 'skills' developed by expert psychologists, educationists, trainers and counsellors. These 'skills' enable you to :

- communicate effectively and make children listen to you.
- help children cope with their negative feelings like fear, jealousy, disappointment, failure etc.
- express anger without causing hurt.
- get children to cooperate willingly.
- resolve conflicts effectively.
- substitute punishment.
- make children independent and confident.
- praise children so as to help them develop a positive self-image.
- free children from playing out the roles that they have been cast into.
- form happy, less stressful and satisfying relationships with children.

"I took the best decision of my life by enrolling for this workshop. I feel great when my son listens to me and cooperates. Thank you, VES."

Ritika Sinha, Dietician
